This is the stories of five very different advocates for peace in our times:

(1) Betty Williams , and (2) Mairead Corrigan (Maguire) awarded the 1976 Nobel Peace Prize for their ongoing commitment to peace-making during the time of “the Troubles.” (3) Leymah Gbowe from Liberia, who gathered Christian and Muslim women together to address the horrors of the regime of Charles Taylor (4) Mother Teresa, (5) Immaulee Ilibagiza from Rwanda, working for peace in her terror strewn land, and (6) Sr. Dorothy Stang, working with and for poor peasants in the jungles of Brazil.

We include liturgical dance, moments of meditation, intercessory prayer and music along with the stories of these courageous women.
